OFF THE LIP 2017

Transdisciplinary approaches to Cognitive Innovation

16-18 August 2017 | Plymouth University, UK

Through an exploration of cognitive innovation as a bootstrapping adaptive situated process, we have come to understand creativity as a unity, rather than a dichotomy, between the internal system and the external world.

Off The Lip, in its third edition, will test the concept of cognitive innovation at its limits with a focus on the consequences for creativity when this unity is disrupted (intentionally or accidentally) by external forces—an idea that we have captured in the term 'displacement'.

Off The Lip 2017 offers a diverse ideas exchange, with multiple perspectives from art, science, engineering, and business. We invite you to submit your work and join us:

CogNovo is an exciting multidisciplinary collaborative programme that links the sciences, arts, and humanities, working under the banner of cognitive innovation.

Off The Lip 2017 welcomes submissions on topics related to cognitive innovation and creativity. We especially welcome submissions around the theme of cognitive innovation and displacement.

The Balance-Unbalance 2017 conference (21-23 August) follows on after Off The Lip and if you seek a recreational break in between, the wilds of Dartmoor and Cornwall's dramatic coastline lie within easy reach.

Registration for Off The Lip is free for students. A nominal fee of £50 will be charged to other participants to cover lunches and coffee. Registration is essential and available through the CogNovo website (<https://OTLip17.CogNovo.eu>) where you will also find information on accommodation options.
